

ABSTRACT

An apparatus for managing the purchase and sale by a broker of a high value piece of property comprising: a control unit for inputting information by a broker related to a high value property item and for posting information about the property and publishing the information to at least one buyer.